Limes Farm can be discovered in Farthinghoe in the rolling countryside of Northamptonshire between Banbury and Brackley. The farm has been in the Deeley family for around 200 years although the family can be traced back to farms in this area as far back as 1066. In more recent times Limes Farm has reared sheep, cattle and pigs and has grown a wide variety of cereals. We have also diversified so that we now produce a large selection of fruit and vegetables that are used in our own products.

We have incorporated the spirit of traditional farming into the way we produce our products. You see, traditional farmers know that you can't rush nature. Raw ingredients take time to grow, to ripen and to harvest. So we wait for nature to tell us when everything is ready and when it is we work flat out to make our range of produce.

Please note: If you are arriving by car, please use the main road entrance as there is no access from Manor Lane. Walkers and cyclists can use either entrance.
